

BARCELONA BEER CHALLENGE

PRESS DOSSIER

New edition Barcelona Beer Challenge:

We bring you the eighth edition of the Barcelona Beer Challenge, a competition of international scope that has contributed to, along with other initiatives, bringing a new level of recognition and visibility to quality beer. This new edition is born out of the desire to continue the task that we began to promote and give visibility to this industry.

Impact of the previous edition

The seventh edition of the Barcelona Beer Challenge (2022) was attended by 215 breweries from across 15 countries, which submitted 1.315 beer references to the competition. The previous edition generated an international, competitive, and representative context of the current brewer scene that has not gone unnoticed by the national and foreign media (links to a press release).

Barcelona Beer Challenge (2022) was attended by 215 breweries from across 15 countries, which submitted 1.315 beer references to the competition

Organization of the Barcelona Beer Challenge:

The Barcelona Beer Challenge (BBC) is an initiative of the company Beer Events, who are dedicated to the organization of various events related to the world of beer, with highlights including the Barcelona Beer Festival.

Beer Events was founded in 2012 by 4 partners linked to the craft beer sector since the 90s; which has gradually specialized in the management of events and projects for third parties, always linked to craft and quality beer, at all levels.

Little over ten years, Beer Events (BE) has positioned itself as a leading company and a reference on a national scale in the creation of beer events. As examples of its work, we could highlight recent projects such as: collaboration in the development of various studies on craft beer: Catalonia, Euskadi and Spain, the creation of the first convention of brewers in the state, the InnBrew, among others... "BE" is always present in the main national and international forums related to the sector. + information.

Barcelona Beer Festival/InnBrew:

Barcelona Beer Festival provides a comprehensive view of the beer sector, combining the presence of beers of reference, its importance as a meeting forum for the sector, and the significant efforts made in the publicity of the event.

Barcelona Beer Festival is the main event of the sector in Spain and one of the most important in Southern Europe.

The festival attracts more than 35,000 visitors in just one weekend. More than 600 different breweries are present, representing the best national and international breweries.

Over the last two years, Beer Events has detected a need to create an exclusively professional event designed to meet the needs of companies dedicated to the beer sector, which is why in 2021 Innbrew was born, the first beer convention in Spain, and from then on it will be the venue for the Barcelona Beer Challenge awards ceremony, both events are held together with the Barcelona Beer Festival.

The Barcelona Beer Festival and InnBrew are making a decisive contribution:

- To the dissemination and visualization of quality beer, both through the large attendance and through the appearance of content about the festival in national news and news in the main newspapers and radios.
- To the professionalization of the sector, facilitating contact forums between national and international brewers of the first order, as well as organizing professional conferences and speed meetings within the framework of Innbrew. The objective is to promote the exchange of knowledge and enhance the business opportunities that the sector currently offers.
- To offer a comprehensive vision of the beer sector: with two powerful events and fully linked to each other, either through the beer references that it contemplates to serve at its annual event, by the meeting forum that represents within the sector the organization of this act, and for the dissemination work it carries out in front of the final consumer.

Boom in craft beer offerings

The current beer offering is characterized by the increasingly evident proliferation of tap room stores and locales (bars with a large variety of tap beers) that offer a wide range of high quality national and international beers, of both draft and bottled beer, and on some occasions serving beers that have left the factory as soon as they have been barrelled, in this way ensuring maximum freshness. Lately there has been an influx of the appearance of a new type of beer locale, the so-called BrewPub. This type of locale produces beer in situ, which will later be consumed in the same place.

All these phenomena are placing quality beer in a unique position -across the entire country, but particularly in Barcelona- to become more widely known, display its qualities and establish itself on the market in a definitive manner, as has happened in other countries that were not traditionally beer producers, such as Sweden, Canada and Denmark.

The momentum for quality beer is generating a new niche for the hospitality sector, as well as an opportunity for the regeneration and refocus of many locales as this growing presence of quality beer can be used by locales to highlight the differences they have with all other competitors, as well as a way to diversify their traditional type of consumer.

Quality beer is also becoming a protagonist in the gastronomy arena in the number of menu options that incorporate it as a new element, either in the elaboration of the dishes themselves or by offering pairing options for dishes with different beer styles. An example of a locale that has adopted this new trend is the renowned Racó d'en Cesc in Barcelona, with its pairing menu that includes various beers having enjoyed notable critical success.

Main objectives of the Barcelona Beer Challenge:

Highlights of the BBC's objectives include:

- Giving importance to, and recognizing, those beers that respect the highest quality standards in a way that remains faithful to the various styles they represent.
- Providing guidance to consumers when they are purchasing beer from among the current range of both national and international beers on offer.
- Contributing to the dissemination of beer culture through the different beers awarded across the variety of styles that are currently on offer and highlighting the qualities and possibilities of the beer in new and diverse arenas.
- The BBC awards also aim to contribute to the professionalization of the beer sector, by including a jury made up of qualified members, and through compliance with internationally certified tasting protocols.

Professionalization of the Jury: Beer Judge Certification Program the most prestigious international festivals.

One of the biggest advancements, and a main differentiation factor of the Barcelona Beer Challenge from other national contests, is the creation of a jury recognized by the BJCP \(Beer Judge Certification Program\), which means the jury is made up of judges who hold the BJCP certificate. The program for judge qualification includes theoretical and practical tests, and is a compulsory prerequisite in the selection of judges at

The BJCP certification program is the program of reference regarding beer classification that has been in development since 1985. It originates from the USA.

The program also certifies the abilities and criteria of the judge to evaluate and rate beer in a competitive context. In this way, the BBC ensures the participation of a professional jury and gives the competition incontestable recognition and an authority that will contribute to the much-needed professionalization of the beer sector in many aspects. The work required to select the jury and the assessments given throughout the beer tasting procedures will be undertaken by an experience judge, who has extensive experience as an international judge and a beer tasting conductor.

Components for the evaluation of beer:

The evaluation and tasting of beer are made up of various elements. The most important are:

During the evaluation phase for the beer’s APPEARANCE, the elements evaluated include*:

Colour	Turbidity
Presence of impurities	Foam (head retention and colour)

During the evaluation phase of the beer’s AROMA different aspects are assessed, including:

Characteristics of some ingredients on the nose
Range of nuances	Power of the aromas

Both flavours and nuances on the palate are assessed, such as the MOUTHFEEL of:

Astringency	Body
Effervescence	Taste of Alcohol

*Possible technical errors are taken into account in the generation of the final evaluation.

All these parameters are evaluated taking into account the different characteristics of the broad range of beers that exists: a total of 34 styles that incorporate 120 sub-styles, so the beer not only needs to have a good taste, aroma and appearance, but also needs to meet the characteristics typical of the specific style to which the beer being evaluated belongs.

Awards and Recognitions:

The breweries will receive recognition for its valued beers, which will materialize in some different awards endowed with the legitimacy granted by a jury selected and recognized internationally. The BBC awards also aim to spread the beer culture among consumers, as well as to guide them in the acquisition of high-quality beers among the wide range of beers available in the market. With this objective, the winners (and for each award-winning beer) will be provided with a logo that can be inserted into their labels, digital platforms, promotional materials, packaging, web, etc. A distinctive seal that will provide information and help make the award-winning beers visible.

The Barcelona Beer Challenge Awards are divided into 5 categories:

A) Awards to the best beers for each style category. Consists of awarding gold, silver and bronze medals. These prizes will be assigned taking into account the quality of the beer and will contemplate parameters such as: aroma, flavours, mouth feel, appearance, absence of defects; as well as the adaptation to the style to which beer is ascribed.

B) Awards to the best brewery. This prize will be awarded the set of beers presented by the same brewer, and who obtains more points among all the beers, at the rate of: 2 points for a bronze medal, 3 for a silver medal and 5 for a gold medal.

C) Best Rookie brewery: This award recognizes and visualizes the best Rookie Brewery that starts the commercialization of its beer after January 1, 2021. It will be awarded the Rookie Brewery who obtains more points among all beers presented in this order: 2 points per bronze medal achieved, 3 points per silver medal achieved, 5 points per gold medal achieved.

D) Molina for Brewers Innovation Award: An award that wants to inspire the brewer to explore new work territories as we present a prize in recognition of innovation in the creative process of beer making

E) Platinum Award: A special prize called 'Platinum Medal' will be awarded to those beers that in the current edition win a Medal for the fifth time, regardless of the type of medals or editions that won the other four.

The prizes will be revealed and awarded at a ceremony within the framework of events at the Barcelona Beer Festival, thus giving them the media exposure that the Festival provides.
